

CLASSICAL ORDERS

By Gateman

(Originally published as Hassett in the Enigma)

Rows of this puzzle contain two entries, clued in order from left to right. Columns also contain two entries, and in addition, each is designed in one of the three classical orders of Ancient Greek architecture.

Doric: The simplest of the orders, entries are entered normally, and clued in order (from top to bottom).

Ionic: Noted for its spiraling volutes, entries begin in a row to be determined, and upon reaching the bottom of the column, wrap around to the top.

Corinthian: The most elaborate order, entries are anagrammed into new valid words prior to entry, and are clued in order.

Architecture styles are divided evenly among the twelve columns.

Finally, each column contains a single letter which is not used by the corresponding crossing entry. These letters may appear anywhere within or between Across entries. From left to right, these letters reveal a location famous for its many columns.

Rows

- Pea coat sometimes was a bit short?
Concert leader's instrument produces musical note (hyph.) [NI3]
- Familiarize a new student with a recurring symbol in Don Quixote: one falling into crevice
If not English, regularly read Ulysses
- Mongrel, after splitting iron, becomes extremely lean (hyph.)
Touch decapitated fish
- Uncovered dictator's grated cheese
Harrison of My Fair Lady recited — in a form of Latin — part of the phonetic alphabet
- Where one may find a hairdresser covering back of perm in a pinkish hue
Spin two 360°s, breaking record
- Lively cat I've disturbed
Goddess resides in Sheraton
- Tournament's final isn't seen as fair
Bend in river passing through Davenport
- Measure of acidity taken by Scandinavian member of Mystery Incorporated
Attempt to express in words after clearing out esophagus

Columns

- A Birds polluted sounds
Walk with the two of us, my companion being a woman without husband

- B Neolithic depictions caution about what gets raptors going (2 wds.) [NI3]
A character going through several ups and downs is without goals
- C Trade school with entertaining principal from Canada
Confused Oakland athlete eats bananas (2 wds.)
- D Mistake made by offensive lineman during rush Spooner's bit of wordplay guidance is outstanding
- E Beast lacking intelligence expressed a lack of interest
Shaved painful part of the face
- F Nile flowing by eastern Egypt, becoming a bay on the coastline
Direct run leaving Cleveland and ending in Akron
- G Skin mark caused by fine rash smooths out Eton's new architecture exhibits sound quality
- H Winter athlete retakes sixth, emerging from behind Last response on a questionnaire, often, or the alternative
- I Curse is broken by lady with one corkscrew
Park car, being a bundle of nerves
- J Einstein denying existence of boron causes alarm
Extraterrestrial leaves makeup from outer space
- K Liquid is used to break up solid spice Pines drop needles to start generations
- L Candy that's dispensed on the inside when lorazepam is all up
Timid bears lightly pound my back, showing compassion